DARK KNIGHT RISING SHOOTER This undated film image released by Warner Bros. Pictures shows Christian Bale as Batman in a scene from the action thriller "The Dark Knight Rises." The premiere showing of the movie in Aurora, Colorado, a suburb of Denver, was marred by the mysterious shooting of moviegoers by the gunman, James Holmes, 24, who is now in custody. The police believe there was no other shooter.

Masked gunman shoots moviegoers at random; 12 killed, 50 hurt

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT? People gather outside the Century 16 movie theater in Aurora, Colorado, the scene of a mass shooting early Friday morning (about 2:30 p.m. Friday Manila time). Police chief Dan Coats said that aside from the fatalities, 50 were injured following the shooting at the suburban Denver movie theater.

DENVER, Colorado—A masked gunman killed 12 people and wounded 50 others when he opened fire on moviegoers at a midnight showing of the new Batman movie "The Dark Knight Rises" in this city in the early hours of Friday, police said.

The violence and chaos scene erupted about 12:30 a.m. local time (about 2:30 p.m. on Friday Manila time) as a man in a gun mask stood at the front of one of the Aurora mall and on off a smoke as new gun bomb before opening fire at moviegoers.

Federal law enforcement officials identified the suspect as 24-year-old local resident James Holmes.

"You have the right person," a San Diego woman who identified herself as Holmes' mother told ABC News. She said she had nothing to do with the shooting and had not yet been contacted by authorities. She immediately expressed concern that her son may have been involved in the shooting.

"I need to call the police," she said, apparently speaking on her cell phone. "I need to fly out to Colorado." Local news reports showed aerial video of police cautiously searching Holmes' apartment near the miles from Century 16 theater, as the gunman had earlier told police that he had explosives inside.

The incident was apparently the worst mass shooting in the US since the 2007 mass shooting on the Virginia Tech campus that killed 32 people and wounded 17 others.

Colorado itself has suffered mass killings in the past. In 1995, two students opened fire at Columbine High School in the suburb of Littleton, near

Baguio court orders arbitration of John Hay debt row

By Vincent Calones

Lawyer

BUENOS AIRES—A court here has ruled in favor of the administration and developers of Camp John Hay in ordering arbitration in a July 12 ruling that is expected to end a debt dispute that has delayed development of the former American resort and recreation area.

Judge Carlos C. Sison, after holding a three-day hearing of arguments and evidence, has directed the Board of Directors and the Board of Directors and Development Authority (BDDA) to submit to the authority of the Philippine Dispute Resolution Center to settle all claims and liabilities with the Camp John Hay Development Corp. (CJHD).

CJHD, which is owned and managed by American businessman Robert John Delapierre, had filed the suit last early this year to compel BDDA to agree to mediation, as well as to restrain the agency from taking any action to collect any of its claims.

Settled issue

The developer submitted a structured time agreement in September 2010 with BDDA, ending its long-standing commercial, financial, and contractual obligations.

This structured time agreement was the product of a long-standing dispute with BDDA in 2005 when the agency filed a writ of mandamus to compel CJHD to submit to mediation and arbitration.

On May 15, 2010, the CJHD filed a writ of mandamus, asking that the developer submit to arbitration to resolve its claims to the writ of mandamus.

"The writ of mandamus is a writ that can be used to compel a party to do something," said the court.

The John Hay team agreement has a clause giving commercial disputes, the court said, to the arbitration of the parties. The court's decision is expected to proceed where the court is not called upon to give judgment on the merits of the dispute of the parties, but that if the arbitration process is not initiated and continuing, the court must order the parties to arbitration, the court said.

Resolving BDDA
The ruling is expected to resolve the dispute of the parties as of April 27, 2012, of the parties' dispute, which is expected to be resolved by the court.

Dark night in Denver; 12 killed

By George H.

Denver, July 31 (UPI)—Twelve students and teachers were killed in a shooting at a public high school in Denver, Colorado, today.

"This is a terrible event," said a police chief. "We have a very serious situation, and we are not sure how many more people will be killed."

The shooting was taking place in the basement of the school, which was a public high school. The school was a public high school.

Obama 'shocked, saddened'

US President Jimmy Carter said he was "shocked and saddened" by the news of the shooting.

Obama said he was "shocked and saddened" by the news of the shooting. He said he was "shocked and saddened" by the news of the shooting.

His administration will do everything that it can to help the victims and their families.

part the people of America in the extraordinarily difficult time," he said. "We are committed to bringing a shooting like this to justice, making the safety of our people, and seeing to those who have been wounded."

Keepers of Iloilo heritage

By Agnes Pineda

AN ARCHITECT, a businessman, a banker and a chief share a passion of bringing Iloilo's past to the present.

Ignacio Zamora, the architect, captures pieces of Iloilo in old buildings, in food, in remembrance events and in art, and gives them relevance. Leo Gallo, the businessman, is a member of the Spanish Lopez House Foundation, which keeps alive the spirit of nationalism inspired by freedom.

Clark Coates, the banker, has restored his family house, Casa de los Reyes, turning it into a living museum. Chief Florencio Fernandez restores old family houses and well-preserved mansions, and, with much faith, transfers them into new accessible homes.

They are the keepers of Iloilo, a small place delisted "La Nueva Ciudad del Sur" (New City of the South) which emerged during the era of prosperity and nobility after the Philippine American War, from the 19th century to the early 20th century.

Spain found built structures and artifacts. From the 18th century, coming with the arrival of the Spaniards, the city's main street and prime commercial area of the city, as well as the main street, were mostly destroyed by fire.

The incident led to the rebuilding along Calle Real, the city's main street and prime commercial area of the city, as well as the main street, were mostly destroyed by fire.

Drainage canal yields priceless artifacts

By Hector P. Garcia
Bato City

WORKERS digging a drainage canal in Bato City's business district have found artifacts which historians believe may offer a look into the locality's rich heritage.

During the excavation, a small porcelain bowl with a blue and white design, which was dated back to the 15th century (1492-1521), according to the archaeological studies program (ASP) of the University of the Philippines (UP) in Diliman, Quezon City.

PETER Sison scored a tough lay-up shot with 3.5 seconds remaining as B-Meg stopped Ginebra, 74-72, last night and avenged a 96-86 demolition, 49th B-Meg vs. Ginebra for the PBA Governors' Cup before a final round at the Smart Araneta Coliseum.

The game was tied at 72 when Marlon Biñanay collected a long free-throw jumper that Sison grabbed and scored into the basket putback, but missed the 26-foot range and sent the B-Meg faithful into a frenzy.

Three minutes later, Sison's lay-up, a 10-foot shot, put B-Meg ahead 74-72. Sison's lay-up, a 10-foot shot, put B-Meg ahead 74-72. Sison's lay-up, a 10-foot shot, put B-Meg ahead 74-72.

PH investments seen to remain attractive

Ayala's Manila Water buys into Vietnamese water firm

By Rex T. Chikondo

MANILA (Philippine Star) — Ayala Water, a subsidiary of the Manila-based conglomerate Ayala Corp., said Friday that it has acquired 49.99 percent of Vietnam's Binh Duong Water Supply Joint Stock Co., which it said is a fully owned water supply company with Saigon Water Corp., Hanoi and a water treatment plant used to supply water to the city.

The acquisition expands Manila Water's presence in Vietnam, which the Ayala group had identified as a "high growth area" for infrastructure investments.

In a deal with the Philippine Stock Exchange, Manila Water said it acquired shares in the joint venture through Binh Duong Water Holdings Pte. Ltd. (BWDH), a subsidiary of Manila Water Asia Pte. Ltd., a Manila Water subsidiary.

Manila Water said it signed an agreement to buy the shares and purchase agreement with the BWDH shareholders.

Low interest rates to boost stocks, bonds, property sector, say experts

By Boris E. Dumic

LOCAL interest rates have come in fall, helping stocks and bonds flourish and making property investment affordable especially for first-time homebuyers, investment experts said on Friday.

In a press briefing at the opening of the Manila-based Asia Pacific 2010 Property Summit, speakers discussed the Philippine market "opening the doors open" in terms of investment opportunities, suggesting that investors should not miss the opportunity to invest in the Philippines.

For the past several years, the Philippines has been a popular destination for foreign investors looking to invest in the country.

Factory, jobs data show US economy still weak

Weekly unemployment claims rise; home resales slump

Asia stocks waver; sentiment in check

BANGKOK—Asian stock markets showed Friday a weak, mixed picture, with investors still in check despite continued hopes for new stimulus measures to spur economic recovery.

Investors have been watching property prices in China as they push up slowing economic growth and also have remained in defense of the U.S. Federal Reserve will continue additional pro-growth measures despite the state from December through to indicators of that in its two-day testimony to lawmakers this week.

The mood of optimism in markets the past few days linked to stimulus hopes was tempered by a shock of weak economic data. Weekly global claims rose 30,000 to a three-week high of 386,000, and an indicator of export manufacturing was much weaker than anticipated. Home sales and leading economic indicators also showed a lack of momentum.

"The outlook is clouded by uncertainty surrounding the economy and U.S. interest rates, in addition to lingering data of a housing recovery," analysts at DBS bank in Singapore said in a report. "Growth in China has been especially critical in driving growth in Asia, and even global growth."

Japan's Nikkei 225 rose 0.4 percent to 9,311.50 while Hong Kong's Hang Seng added 0.2 percent to 19,502.31.

Australia's S&P/ASX 200 was little changed at 4,208.19 and China's Shanghai Composite dropped 0.4 percent to 2,171.75.

Markets in Singapore, India and New Zealand were down while Thailand, Indonesia and the Philippines rose.

In the US on Thursday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 0.3 percent to 12,941.35 and the broader S&P 500 index added 0.3 percent to 1,376.11, with major corporate earnings boosted modestly.

The Philadelphia Federal Reserve said its business activity index for the mid-Atlantic region rose at a reading of 1.6 in July compared with minus 1.6 last month. A reading below zero indicates contraction in output in factories in Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey and Delaware.

Sales orders dropped for a third consecutive month, and a range of employment growth in a new three-year survey. Growth in US factory output slowed to 1.4 percent annual rate in the second quarter after a brief 0.8 percent gain in the first three months of the year, and the Philadelphia Fed's regional survey index suggested a continued loss of momentum.

Joe Nocera, chief economist at Merrill Lynch & Co. in New York, said the economy was not as strong as it seems to be.

"While there are real signs of recovery, the economy is not as strong as it seems to be," Nocera said. "The economy is not as strong as it seems to be."

The economy has been hit by loss of deep government spending cuts and higher taxes and a loss of confidence in the dollar in Europe, Nocera said.

Heineken offers $4.1B for Tiger stake

AMSTERDAM—Heineken and Friday is offering $4.1 billion to buy its partner in the Singapore-based brewer of Tiger beer, attempting to neutralize a Thai tycoon's competing bid for influence over the brand as the Dutch brewer expands its emerging markets.

The offer to Heineken is a $4.1 billion (34.1 billion) and would give Heineken about an 80 percent stake in ABE. The offer is aimed at Heineken, which would acquire a further 20.4 percent stake in the company's shareholders.

The Dutch brewer's move comes after Thai beverage, controlled by Thai tycoon Charoen Wattana, had been in the market to buy Heineken's stake in ABE, which also has been in the market to buy Heineken's stake in ABE.

Hope for Filipinos with advanced prostate cancer

By Charles E. Sabin

DR. ANTONIO Villalón is facing a very interesting dilemma. As one of the country's preeminent medical oncologists, he now has a very promising treatment option for patients suffering from the most advanced stage of prostate cancer.

In fact, the new chemotherapy drug is proving extremely effective for the 100 Filipino patients Villalón is currently treating at the Manila Doctors Hospital and he is helping his patients keep their cancer in check without debilitating side effects.

Advanced prostate cancer occurs when the cancer has spread to the bones and to the lymph nodes. Currently there is little doctors can do to help prostate cancer patients who progress to this stage or those men, who may already suffer from "metastasis" or "metastatic disease" since no longer respond to the usual hormone therapy.

But despite the obvious proof that it could prolong the lives and relieve the symptoms associated to advanced prostate cancer, Villalón cannot immediately offer his patients the use of the new drug because the drug will not be available until August.

Moreover, the number of visits that he has to make to the five patients who are already volunteers for the drug's pilot trial, is not small.

"Access to a greater range of effective treatment options at all stages of prostate cancer is of great importance to prostate cancer patients. And the treatment of advanced prostate cancer has been a real challenge in the world's largest medical centers as well as improve the lives of their families also affected by this disease," said Villalón.

who is also the director of St. Luke's Medical Center's Cancer Institute in Iloilo City, Iloilo.

Prostate cancer is a disease that affects men from around the age of 50 years in the Philippines; it develops in 70.3 out of every 100,000 Filipinos. It activates the prostate gland, which is a small gland about the size of a walnut, positioned just beneath the bladder, and is responsible for producing fluids that combine and protect sperm.

The disease is usually diagnosed among older patients because the disease develops slowly and most cases are, if not, asymptomatic.

30% reduction

In a clinical study that has become the basis for the approval of both the United States and the Philippines Food and Drug Administration, prostate has been shown to reduce the risk of death by 30 percent when used in combination with anti-inflammatory drug prednisone.

The study known as the Phase 3 Trial of the Treatment of Metastatic Hormone-Refractory Prostate Cancer (TROPIC-3), tested the combination of docetaxel, prednisone, and docetaxel-containing prednisone, was conducted in 34 countries in 36 countries.

The Tropic study showed that docetaxel significantly reduced overall survival compared to mitomycin in men whose disease has progressed during or after treatment with docetaxel.

Docetaxel represents a significant therapeutic advance considering that men with this stage of cancer typically have a poor prognosis and most recently there have been no new treatments available to extend life, Villalón explained.

This means prostate will now become the first approved "second-line" treatment after hormone therapy and chemotherapy for men with advanced prostate cancer.

Improve quality of life

"What is also interesting is that the drug has been shown to significantly improve the quality of life of these patients not only in terms of pain relief but also in getting rid of their anxiety and depression as well as in regaining self-confidence," Villalón said.

It should be noted that although the size of the group of patients cancer may cause little or no pain, advanced prostate cancer that has spread to other parts of the body can be very painful. These cancer cells can affect the internal areas—usually the bones in the pelvis, the ribs, the spine (vertebrae) and the lower part of the spine (pelvis). These cancer cells can also spread to the brain, which could lead to a seizure or a stroke.

"Understanding patients' lives at this stage of their prostate cancer is a primary consideration for us as doctors as it should, in essence, that each treatment should provide better health-related quality of life with, however, the most side effects," the doctor said.

Animal protein robs body of calcium, say health experts

By Tessa R. Salazar

ITALY TELUS' new milk is the best source source of calcium. It has a lower sugar than when available oil, because many experts claim that the best sources of calcium are vegetables, fruits, dairy foods that containing low sugar animal protein (yogurt, cheese, milk, etc.) may even rob the body of its protein content.

As a group, the calcium-rich plant foods are also the best sources of the calcium of calcium.

WHEN THE Manila University survey was held in the Philippines nearly two decades ago, the Philippines' representative Charlotte Gonzalez was asked how many islands made up the archipelago. She replied, "I was surprised by the number of islands. I had heard that there were 7,000 islands, but I found out that there were 7,641 islands."

Property expert urges public to keep watch on interest rates

by Teon K. Sotelo

ANALYSTS MAY be one in declaring that the Philippines is safe from a real estate bubble just yet. One expert, however, did urge the public to keep a close eye on reliable indicators. Enrique Soriano, Assoc. program director for real estate and senior adviser for Wang-Olivera Business Advisory, advised that the country shouldn't let its guard down.

Nickel Analysis, CBRE executive director for global commercial real estate, stated that there would be no asset price bubble in the Philippines real estate industry as more projects being built in Metro Manila and other urban centers tend to end-user and are spreading beyond, at least in the office and residential sectors.

Nevertheless, Soriano, associate director, valuation and advisory services and head of consultancy and research of Colliers International told Inquirer Property that because of increased sales and the long construction period before units could be delivered to their purchasers, the real estate market would still be susceptible to bubble attack.

Prospect of a bubble

Soriano said, "There, the prospect of a bubble is always present. Bubble typically emerges due to irrational price increases caused by speculative investment. They can also occur when supply cannot address a sudden spike in demand, and once construction can make up, the supply may be introduced at a time when the demand has already been addressed. Currently, we are not experiencing a price bubble, since although the real estate has been driven mostly by end users and developer competition has kept prices relatively stable."

According to him, Colliers International observations during the first quarter of 2012 showed that commercial office space healthy compared to the same period last year.

"We see no signs of a bubble in demand as of yet. However, our developer clients have been mostly from the boom of the 1997 Asian crisis, and they continuously monitor the state of the market, awaiting interest rates to drop or Capex and new deals."

Dark cloud

Soriano, however, warned: "One dark cloud that we see in the future is the possibility of an increase in interest rates. Currently, rates are being driven by local demand supported by easily accessible stimulus payment schemes being offered by developers as well as low-interest housing loans from banks. They are able to provide low construction packages because of a strong peso and low interest rates."

Nonetheless, such as US Treasury rates and the Libor rate are at historically low levels, and Philippine housing rates have also followed suit. Given that they are at historic lows, it should be expected that they will not drop any further to where China

IMDC project in South Remeron. Said this building.

IMDC project in South Remeron. Said this building.

As the 'good guy' IMDC is not in the business of building.

Banking exec returns 'home'

It is an irony that to be able to sustain the No. 1 position from the second half of 2009 up to the end of 2011. And he is helping to maintain his position in the industry," Clarwell says.

IMDC's rise to the top, according to Clarwell, was propelled mainly by the return of Henry T. Uy Jr., who believes in helping make every individual's life better.

'The good guy'

"Our CEO, Henry T. Uy Jr., was the one who thought of the good guys. That was his idea. He believes that we have to start somewhere and that in this business, and in the good guys, we have to be able to give you the best possible future that you expect to see," Clarwell explains.

As the good guy, IMDC has committed to give the Filipino market an affordable and affordable, strategically located, highly accessible, near commercial areas, offices, hospitals and other places of interest. These property projects show that a promise of having the best services only to be.

It is an irony that to be able to sustain the No. 1 position from the second half of 2009 up to the end of 2011.

IMDC promises to deliver products that are of quality and value. As the good guys we will try as much as possible to give our buyers the best deal and we will do what we can to make our business better in every way possible.

"We also made the market realize that they can afford a home and that is money to me. We are putting quality homes within their reach and they don't have to settle for something that's just ok because what we are giving them is good things," he adds.

Like a matchstick

Clarwell likes the IMDC buying experience in a country where buyers would usually do everything to see the object of their affection. IMDC would usually aim to give all that is right and due to its customers, knowing very well that every peso they spend comes from a hard-earned pit.

Despite the success being reaped by IMDC, Clarwell admits that the company is still quite far from completely achieving its goal, adding that a lot of work still needs to be done.

"IMDC will be here for the long haul so we believe there is still much to be done. And we intend to accomplish that just by doing more of the things that we've actually been doing already. We will continue to focus on our customers and that's what our vision is to do to make that a good deal for them," Clarwell says.

IMDC currently has 12 ongoing projects, of which five are ready for occupancy. It has also had several more projects in the pipeline.

"IMDC has entered, and we are looking for a CEO who has courage and a vision that enables him to achieve to do the things he believes. All under that vision. I think we have found our competitors, but this is not the industry and so it's a place, we have found things up," he adds.

Currently, IMDC continues to strive being the 'good guy' by giving the best in the Philippine real estate industry.

CLARABEL

COMING FULL CIRCLE

Banking exec returns 'home'

By Thomas S. Soriano

IT is good to be "home."
For Mrs. Clarabel, writing now for one of her most trusted clients here in the city days when she was still an advertising executive, that is if she has come full circle.

After moving from one job to another—a creative director and a banking executive—Clarabel now serves as senior vice president for marketing of SM Grand Central City, the property arm of the SM Group.

Clarabel, with the business that she first worked with, the SM Group, when she left Home and Trade by were moving to an advertising agency for its first unit, which she had then joined as SM City North EDSA. After her advertising stint, she had moved to the banking industry when she stayed for more than 21 years.

"I've transitioned in my life so much. I used to be a banker, then I went to advertising as a creative director and then I went into banking when I came to SM. In a way, I had my roots in SM since I worked for the very first unit in North EDSA, giving it the SM City name," Clarabel reads.

Clarabel believes that marketing roles will be an individual who, like her, is looking to "insulate all the things that you learned through the years in marketing to really influence the brand, which is very direct."

And of course, SM, as a brand, is really something that she would want to work for because it's a brand that has given her people's lives," she added.

The former executive turned banker joined the SM Group in 2008, but it was only a year later that she was asked to help handle SMDC, which, at that time, was a relatively new player in the local and overseas scene.

No easy feat

Clarabel thinks that of this assignment as a challenge to prove the brand as a very good marketing experience for her to be able to transfer and leverage on the branding of SM Group as a whole to be the leading IMDC.

But it was no easy feat, she admits.
"SMDC was really a fledgling company because if you look at its working in this industry years ago, in 2006, we were only No. 13 and in 2011, we were No. 6. It was only in the second half of 2011 up to 2012 that SMDC really became No. 1," she replies.

"So a very, very long time at an industry that is powered by a hundred developers."

'Come back to me,' Manila tells David Cook

And the 'American Idol' winner did just that, getting on a great show and declaring how much he loves to perform here.

By Jojo Tio

IT'S BEEN a week since David Cook's victory, but I still can't get his voice out of my head.

For me, he took us to another heaven, and his music, his songs are no less in my pocket. Actually, I'm plugged while writing this article. The new "Guitars" are still crying about this experience at David's Manila and Cebu concerts.

On concert day, while waiting for my best friend to arrive, I stood outside outside outside because for the first time I was going to watch David perform live. He had performed in the Philippines with fellow "American Idol" alumni David Archuleta (archuleta.com) in 2009, but I unfortunately missed that show which David described as the biggest crowd they had the chance to play for.

Inside, only a few in the parking area sat on their seats, so most were standing in front of the stage. A few minutes later, the show began with David with Andy (guitar) and keyboardists, who are his band, David's Band. David's Band (David's Band) and Rick Adams (drums) were on stage.

The chords and drums gave loads as David opened the show with "Cherish," the opening song of his latest album "This Lost Morning."

He followed this with a mashup version of "Honor" and the David hit "Chasing Supernova." Afterward came "My Immortal," from his first post-"Idol" album "David Cook."

Back to 2008, when David auditioned in Omaha, Nebraska, for the seventh season of "American Idol." There was something in his performance that, from the start, hinted that he would make it to the finals, and eventually win the whole competition.

Moments of why I'm a fan of this Midwestern crooner came flooding in his song "Goodbye." There was so much passion in the way he sang, it was incredible.

He continued to amaze us with songs from "This Lost Morning" like "Hard to Believe," "The Last Goodbye" and "Paper Heart."

Secular and civil

In a post-concert interview with David, he told us that "This Lost Morning" is a collection of the story of his life for the past couple of years.

"The last five years have been crazy, all the highs and lows. I tell my friends I want my brain for 20 years, and when I see David I had to realize everything," David said.

One of the concert goals in his life was the playing of his older brother Adam in 2009 after a decade-long battle with brain cancer.

F1 Hotel's Canary Lounge offers a tropical vibe in BGC's cityscape

F1 Hotel, BGC's first high-rise hotel in the area recently introduced the Canary Lounge, which promises to be the newest chilling place in the metro where guests can experience a tropical feel inside the first beaching cityscape of Bonifacio Global City. "The main idea of the Canary Lounge came from the Canary Bird," said Mr. Ruffy Chien, F1 Hotel's Corporate General Manager. "These birds originated at this beautiful, relaxing, and breezy island place called the Canary Island. It is a place where the four natural elements combine their respective specialties generously making it a perfect tropical location. This fact also became our inspiration in choosing the ambience and design of our lounge. We also adopted yellow, the dominant color of the Canary Birds to be the accent color of our new F&B center," he further adds.

Aside from the warm, drizzle at the said tropical lounge area also created with a touch of the Canary concept. According to Mr. Ruffy Chien, F1 Hotel's F&B Manager, "We decided to create drizzle that have fluffy clouds. The room came up with the lounge's signature drink, the Ginger Ale Lemonade. What is really exciting about our drizzle is that from being alcoholic and alcoholic but still maintain the same relaxing taste." He guarantees our guests that the drizzle can complement their Canary drinks and quench their thirst," he added.

Director of Sales & Marketing, Mr. Cindy Bond describes the new outlet as something competitive and would definitely be on top of the scale of the popular market. The said encounter are confident that under the competition is not present at the F1, their lounge will represent itself.

F1 Hotel is located at 242nd Street, Bonifacio Global City. For more information, call 028-8888-0000-1188 or visit www.f1hotel.com. To follow them on Facebook, check out F1Hotel and Twitter @f1hotel.

Planning Your Dream Kitchen

For the best home made chows

The kitchen has blossomed to become a social gathering space for friends and a haven for quiet reflection. More people are staying at home, surrounding themselves with things that bring convenience and comfort to their living space. Kitchen remodels are second to third in a home-remodeling project and it is one of the most important areas to justifiably remodel. That makes sense, because the kitchen is very important to the entire home. It is the most important room in the house, not only as a place to eat, but as a place to live. It is the heart of the home.

1. Color: If your kitchen is big, but dull, dress it up with bright color schemes. Use yellow and orange. Adding color changes the mood and atmosphere of a room. Including a colorful centerpiece in a roomed remodel is a great way to give a kitchen a new look. When deciding on a color palette for your kitchen, be realistic. If you want your kitchen to be cool, light, airy and open, then use neutral and cool dark woods. Rich, warm-toned woods are perfect.

2. Lighting: Well-placed kitchen lighting can create a warm and inviting space, increase the value of your property and highlight cabinets and design features. Always consider the three basic functions of lighting in the kitchen: ambient, task and accent lighting. Ambient lighting provides a soft, even glow. Task lighting is used to illuminate the work area. Accent lighting is used to highlight specific features.

3. Countertops: Solid surface countertops are the trend for today's kitchen and offer classic style kitchen. They provide a clean, seamless surface that can easily be repaired if there are scratches and can be buffed and polished to provide a fresh looking surface that is long lasting. It can also be molded into many shapes and sizes that traditional materials like marble, tile or granite cannot follow. These materials will also look seamless because joints can be achieved using the same acrylic material as your base that is placed between, making it look homogeneous. To add character to the wall behind your sink, and like in your kitchen, apply your creativity and select your kitchen walls with a care to match the look.

4. Food Storage: Efficient storage is critical to the kitchen. Good organization and easy access is essential to these spaces. Cabinets are the storage area of choice in kitchens. They should be well made and deep, and may use staggered shelving, door racks, roll-out bins, drawer dividers and pull-out racks with dividers to maximize the use of space.

5. Seating the kitchen: Kitchen seats must be able to rotate, swivel, slide, pivot, fold and fold down. The pivot should be able to rotate 360 degrees. The pivot should be able to rotate 360 degrees. The pivot should be able to rotate 360 degrees.
